

Arizona Art Education Association

A vibrant and creative community that inspires, supports, and advocates for innovative learning in the visual arts

Policy & Procedures Manual

Introduction

The Arizona Art Education Association (AAEA) Policy and Procedure Manual is meant to serve as a guide to the AAEA elected and appointed leadership in conducting the business of the association. Policies and procedures provide an organization with a basis of operation that is fair and equitable to all members. If an action is called into question, the leadership may call upon policy and procedure to assist them in making a fair and logical decision.

Historically, The AAEA has always taken a leadership role in state and national art education issues. Our members have held a variety of positions on the NAEA board, served on NAEA committees and served as reviewers of NAEA publications. As an affiliate of the NAEA, the AAEA Constitution, Bylaws and Policy and Procedures reflect the wishes of the AAEA membership as well as model those of NAEA.

Within the scope of the mission and goals of AAEA, the organization's leadership generally cites both internal and external goals. These have varied from year to year depending on the political climate, current education issues and the desires of the membership. Typically, maintenance goals are those goals that refer to ongoing projects. Examples of these are:

- An annual state conference,
- A communication document such as a newsletter, magazine, or journal,
- Exhibits, Visual Arts Student Awards (VASA)
- Youth Art Month (YAM)

External goals are those goals that focus directly on current needs of art educators of Arizona. These may be influenced by the current AAEA leadership and reflect a sign of the times. Some of these have included:

1. Taking an active role in shaping Arizona State Department of Education issues which may include but are not limited to:
 - a. Curricular issues regarding what art education will be taught in the common (K-8) schools in Arizona,
 - b. Choosing educators who will teach children,
 - c. What types of certifications and endorsements those teachers must have.
2. Influencing the makeup of the art teacher proficiency exam.
3. Influencing the direction of assessment of student progress.
4. Taking an active role in advocating for art education, arts and education issues with key decision makers and educating the membership.
5. Providing membership with appropriate professional development to assist them in meeting any new mandates or changes in curricular edicts.

The list identified above is meant to illustrate examples and is not a total list of possible choices.

Usually, the AAEA executive officers will meet after the election to form a skeleton of possible goals for the administration term of office. At the changeover meeting, generally held in March or April, the existing officers and council share their roles and responsibilities with the new state council. At this time the new president would share potential goals with the council and begin to focus on those areas of greatest importance and interest. After the changeover meeting, most likely in the summer, a leadership retreat including the state council is conducted to determine specific goals and action plans to achieve them.

Because members have always wanted to be frugal with the AAEA budget, care should be taken to select sites for these meetings and retreats that are convenient to the majority of the members attending and have minimal cost to the organization.

Following the policies and procedures identified in this manual will serve to create unity, efficiency and continually improve the effectiveness of AAEA. The future of AAEA is in your hands, heart and soul. Make your decisions wisely based upon the policies and procedures outlined within this manual. Let your decisions be based upon meeting the art education needs for the citizenry of Arizona: the children, the community and the teachers who provide the instruction.

PREAMBLE TO THE CONSTITUTION

The Arizona Art Education Association through its Constitution sets forth the means by which the aspirations of those responsible for programs of art education can be supported and extended.

As an organization, we affirm our belief in the power of the visual arts to enrich the lives and endeavors of our community. In a highly technological society such as ours, the visual arts serve as a humanizing force, giving dignity and a sense of worth to the individual.

It is our purpose to promote and maintain the highest possible quality of instruction in visual arts programs through diverse methods of professional development. It shall be our intent to communicate our belief to the organized teaching profession and to the community-at-large, to strengthen the position of the visual arts as a discipline in the schools, and to positively affect the role of art education in the culture.
